

ACCESSING YOUR MESSAGES IN ALL YOUR EMAIL ACCOUNTS FROM THE DESKTOP

Beginners' Kaffee Klatch
Presented by Bill Wilkinson
November 26, 2005

ePrompter, a free program that has received C/net's top rating of 5, will automatically and simultaneously check and retrieve your email messages from up to sixteen email accounts AND will let you read, delete and respond to any of your messages with a simple click on the account of your choice without ever having to launch your email program or go to your webmail's site.

ePrompter works with AOL (surprise!), Hotmail, Yahoo, Cox and all other POP3 servers, Earthlink, Excite, iName, Juno, Lycos, Mail.com, Mindspring, MSN, MyWay, Netscape, OneBox, Rediffmail, SBC Yahoo, Switchboard, USA.net and hundreds of other email domains.

This nifty program notifies you which accounts have new messages and how many new messages you have in each account, once new messages have been retrieved by your computer.

ePrompter lets you forward and reply back through the account from which your messages were retrieved. You can also send original messages through any account that you have working within your ePrompter without ever having to launch your email program or go to your webmail's site. It also features an address book.

ePrompter let's you delete unwanted spam or suspicious looking mail -- the kind that might contain viruses -- again without having to launch your email program or go to your webmail's site.

ePrompter notification features include a unique rotating tray icon, the main ePrompter screen, audio alerts for new messages, and a choice of five unique screensavers that let you know at a glance the number of new messages in each account.

<http://www.download.com/3000-2369-10045181.html>

We will demonstrate how to download, install, and use this program.